ABSTRACT

A document data handling apparatus for coupling a plurality of document data, wherein each of the plurality of document data includes a plurality of types of files, the apparatus including: a document managing part configured to manage the plurality of document data; a document data coupling control part configured to control the document data coupling process; and a document name generating part configured to cause a document name of second document data obtained from coupling the plurality of document data to take over a document name of the document data from which the coupling is thus carried out, and also, configured to use a document name of the second document data as file names of the respective document data from which the second documents data is thus obtained.